July 31, 2024

Subject: Recommendation Letter for Cole Simpson

To Whom It May Concern,

I am writing this letter to recommend Cole Simpson, who was a student in my data science course at San Diego State University. Cole distinguished himself not only through his academic performance, but also through his active engagement in the classroom. He was one of the most vocal students, often asking insightful questions and contributing to discussions in a way that greatly enhanced the learning experience for his peers and supported my teaching efforts.

During the semester, students were assigned a machine learning project as part of their coursework. Cole was one of a handful of students that I chose to be given the opportunity to submit a computer vision project, rather than the initial task he had been assigned. Despite my warning that this would require more effort and carry a higher risk to his grade, Cole eagerly accepted the challenge. His enthusiasm for artificial intelligence and machine learning was evident, and he demonstrated a solid grasp of these subjects throughout the semester.

Cole's ability to communicate well, combined with his clear interest in AI and machine learning, convinces me that he has the potential to excel in any role related to these fields. He is not only technically proficient, but also possesses the curiosity and drive necessary to thrive and grow quickly in a new and challenging environment.

I am confident that Cole Simpson would be a valuable asset to your team, and I wholeheartedly recommend him for a position at your company. Please feel free to contact me if you need any further information or would like to discuss his qualifications in more detail.

Sincerely,

S. Ubani

Solomon Ubani, Ph.D.
Lecturer, San Diego State University
Senior Data Scientist, Intuit